

Mayors Upbeat About Our Economy

The Chamber's Networking and Education meeting in April featured the Mayors of Bridgeton, Hopewell, and Upper Deerfield, and the Deputy Mayor of Lawrence. They talked about existing businesses that are growing and prospects for new business and development. The panel discussion was moderated by Bridgeton Area Chamber of Commerce Board Member Christy DiLeonardo of Cumberland County Department of Workforce Development.

The meeting was presented live by Quinn Broadcasting on their Facebook and YouTube pages and on Cable Channel 22. The broadcast was sponsored by Cumberland Mutual, Cumberland Development Corp., and

The Bridgeton Area Chamber of Commerce. The meeting was sponsored by the Cumberland County Board of Commissioners. Commission Director Darlene Barber spoke on behalf of the county.

Deputy Mayor Skip Bowman of Lawrence Township talked about the agriculture-related and other businesses that are located in Lawrence and the Cedarville area. They include large operations growing, processing and shipping tomatoes, mushrooms, and other products across the Mid Atlantic states. He also pointed out the township's recent creation of a redevelopment zone near the Winchester Western rail line to help attract future businesses.

Mayor Albert Kelly and Economic Development Director Kevin Rabago of Bridgeton spotlighted recent expansions of business and industry, including a multi-million dollar expansion of Cumberland Dairy, upgrades at Ardagh, new growth in the Cumberland County Food Specialization Center, new local and regional retailers, including Wawa, and the opening of the new CompleteCare Health Network corporate headquarters and health offices downtown. They see continued new business and jobs in 2022 and beyond.

Mayor Paul Ritter, III of Hopewell Township, talked about the opportunities for retail, service, and professional offices in several locations along Rt. 49, Shiloh Pike in the township. He added that The Bridgeton Amish Farm Market, Green Olive Restaurant, and Shops at Dragon Village are businesses that attract not only local shoppers, but visitors and shoppers from across South Jersey.

Mayor James Crilley of Upper Deerfield highlighted the attributes of large parcels of available, business and industrial zoned land, served by public water, sewer, gas, electric, and most importantly the railroad owned by OmniTrax, that are putting Upper Deerfield on the map for industry looking for those assets in one location. The township expects to announce new major businesses in the coming months, both industrial and retail. Mayor Crilley added that the township's expansive redevelopment area is another key to its future growth and success.

Christy DiLeonardo concluded that in her role in the County's Workforce Development Department, she sees the continued growth of the area's businesses reflected in the growing demand for well-trained and motivated employees. She added that the Chamber and Cumberland Development Corp. marketing theme of "Cumberland Grows" very well describes the future of this area.

The Bridgeton Area Chamber's May meeting was held at the Rutgers Food Innovation Center (RFIC) in Bridgeton. Mellonie O'Neill, the Senior Manager of QA Compliance & Training, led a lively and informative presentation about the history, services, clients, and future of RFIC. Mellonie's experience and her passion for the food industry, and the work the Center does was obvious as she explained how RFIC strengthens the food industry in New Jersey and in Cumberland County.

Nithya Rajakumar, Operations Manager of Sundial Foods, which is using the Center to help launch the new plant-based food business, talked about the budding new business and explained why she and co-founders of the business, who are from California, chose to come east to use the unique services and facilities of the RFIC. Pictured below are the plant-based wings under development and the co-founders of Sundial Foods Siwen Deng and Jessica Schwabach.

Making Our Businesses & Communities Safe

The Bridgeton Area Chamber of Commerce held a breakfast meeting in June at the Green Olive Restaurant. The meeting's topics were "Making Our Businesses and Communities Safe" and "Report on Cumberland County Services and Projects."

Carol Musso, President of the Chamber, Vice President at Century Savings Bank, and a Cumberland County Commissioner, welcomed everyone and moderated the meeting.

Cumberland County's chief law enforcement official, County Prosecutor Jennifer Webb-McRae, was the lead speaker. She talked about her state-appointed position and its responsibilities to bring criminals to justice. She emphasized the community-based services her office provides to try to keep citizens out of trouble, and to help them seek treatment for drug problems, to keep them out of the more expensive prison system.

Her department, partnering with the community and organizations like Inspira Health, and using grant money, runs several programs to help reduce crime. They include the addiction recovery coach training and helping with the "Recovery on Wheels" roving services van. The Prosecutor's office is also working to get those arrested due to addiction, into a rehab program to avoid being sentenced to jail. They have a program to encourage citizens to anonymously report tips and crimes.

Cumberland County Sheriff Robert Austino highlighted the many ways his department assists area police departments when additional assistance is requested. Recently this has included housing people under arrest in cells at the court house when the County Jail was not staffed sufficiently to allow prisoner intake overnights. He said his department also works on community relations and partners with the Prosecutor's office. Officers get out of their vehicles each day to interact with the young people. They also do a mini police academy for youth to interest them in law enforcement. The department also provides drone surveillance as needed.

Gabriel Scarpa, Director of the County Office of Emergency Management, urged residents and business owners to have a plan for all kinds of disasters and emergencies at their homes and businesses. He encouraged people not to wait until something happens to develop a plan, but to do it ahead for better outcomes. "We don't need to be a doomsday type planning person, but some type of planning for survival and safety is critical," said Scarpa.

Darlene Barber, Director of the Cumberland County Board of Commissioners, made a brief report on the services and projects of county government. She recapped the master plan that the County leaders put in place several years ago with improvement in education, workforce training, economic development, shared services, and communications as centerpieces.

She said she is proud of the progress, especially the opening and success of the full-time Cumberland County Technical High School, and the expanded role of the Improvement Authority in economic development.

She said that over $30 million in American Recovery Act funds are being used to revamp county emergency communications, to boost broadband service to under-served areas of the county, and to plan for improvements in parks, recreation, and tourism.

Our thanks to the sponsor of the June meeting.

Positive Comments

"Congratulations! Initiatives like these are the ones that generate movements that allow us to unite, join forces and help our Hispanic community grow in an articulated manner through value-added connections."

Jenny Martinez, LAEDA.

"Gran alcance para la comunidad latina. Esperando que más profesionales hispanos aprovechen y valoren los esfuerzos que está haciendo el Comité de Negocios Hispanos de la Cámara de Bridgeton para el éxito continuo de todos los negocios en el área del centro de la ciudad".
Martha Torres, Century Savings Bank.

This article contributed by Minerva Alvarado, Chamber Board Member and Co-Chair of the Chamber Hispanic Business Committee.

On Wednesday, June 29th 2022 the Bridgeton Chamber of Commerce Hispanic Business Committee co-chaired by Minerva Alvarado (Corporate Secretary for the Chamber) and Jon Cummings (2nd Vice Chair of the Chamber) held their first Hispanic Business Committee Networking Mixer at Inka Chicken Bar, 22 S. Laurel Street in Bridgeton. "The event was a huge success," said Minerva Alvarado.

Revive South Jersey, the Event Sponsor, hosted the food and light refreshments. "I'll be expanding the restaurant to include a larger room with tables, another bar, and live music with an opening in 2023", said Hector Bonilla, owner of Inka Chicken, specializing in Peruvian rotisserie chicken.

Guests represented different Hispanic businesses and Hispanic professionals. See the list in the Spanish version of this article that follows. Stay tuned for more info for the next networking event!

If you would like to join the Bridgeton Chamber of Commerce, please call the office, 856-451-4200 or email: bacc@baccnj.com. For information about the Hispanic Business Committee, please contact Minerva: malvarado@servpro11562.com or Jon: jon@revivesj.org.

El miércoles 29 de junio de 2022, el Comité de Negocios Hispanos de la Cámara de Comercio de Bridgeton, copresidido por Minerva Alvarado (Secretaria Cor-porativa de la Cámara) y Jon Cummings (segundo vicepresidente de la Cámara), llevó a cabo su primer "Networking Mixer" en Inka Chicken Bar, 22 S. Laurel Street en Bridgeton "El evento fue un gran éxito", dijo Minerva Alvarado.

Revive South Jersey, el patrocinador del evento, organizó la comida y los refrigerios en Inka Chicken Bar. "Expandiré el restaurante para incluir una sala más grande con mesas, otra barra y música en vivo con una apertura en 2023", dijo Héctor Bonilla, propietario de Inka Chicken Bar, que se especializa en pollo asado peruano.

Los invitados representaron a diferentes empresas hispanas y profesionales hispanos como: Bridgeton Main Street Assoc. (Gil Walter), Asociación de Desarrollo Económico de América Latina (LAEDA) (Sophie Werner, Oradora y Jenny Martinez), Century Savings Bank (Martha Torres), Biblioteca Pública de Bridgeton (Laurie Ortiz), La Casa Dominicana NJ (Luis Rodriguez), SERVPRO Team Fabiani (Minerva Alvarado), Unidos Para La Familia (Isis Sosa), Essential Senior Benefits (Ediana Martinez), Revive South Jersey (Jon Cummings) y la Cámara de Comercio de Bridgeton (Carol Musso, Presidenta y Tony Stanzone, Director Ejecutivo). ¡Estén atentos para obtener más información sobre el próximo evento de networking!

The panel of speakers at the recent tri-chamber meeting on the Cannabis Industry in NJ, left-right, Dennis Palmer of Landis Sewage Authority, meeting moderator, Mayors Albert Kelly of Bridgeton and Lisa Orndorf of Millville, Sandy Forosisky, Economic Development Director for Vineland, and Mayor Anthony Fanucci of Vineland.

This article was contributed by Stephanie McGhee.

Bridgeton Area, Greater Millville and Greater Vineland Chambers of Commerce co-presented a panel discussion on the status of the Cannabis industry in Cumberland County on June 28 at The Hampton Inn in Vineland.

The New Jersey Regulatory Enforcement Assistance and Marketplace Modernization Act (CREAMM) authorizes the Cannabis Regulatory Commission (CRC) to expand and further develop the current Medicinal Cannabis Program, as well as develop, regulate, and enforce the rules and activities associated with recreational cannabis for adults 21 years or older.

Mayor Kelly stated Bridgeton City has adopted the ordinance for cannabis production. They are moving forward and working closely with several companies interested in growing their business in Bridgeton. Mayor Kelly's upbeat attitude results from expected industry benefits in jobs and redevelopment.

Mayor Orndorf said Millville has decided to move forward but without allowing retail sales and delivery. Millville is doing all they can to accommodate the needs for the industry, keeping the best interest of the city in mind. Although Millville does not want to be known for Cannabis, it is a new opportunity to provide jobs. Mayor Orndorf and her team are doing their due diligence and obtaining more information regarding the Cannabis industry and will reevaluate.

Economic Development Director of Vineland, Sandy Forosisky and Mayor Fanucci stated Vineland has had a medical marijuana business since 2019, and in 2021 introduced Cannabis for adults. However, there are flaws in the regulations that need to be put in order. Questions arise: how are sales regulated? Where are cannabis business owners storing profits with banking restrictions on this industry? There is no true accountability for revenue.

Mayor Fanucci emphasized the important word is "industry." The Cannabis industry is here, and will bring opportunities for jobs and economic growth; however, the regulations need good sound business principles to be put in place.

Mayor Fanucci suggested that The Authority could play a central role in the development of this industry with municipalities working with them as partners.

Cumberland County Business Expo & Job Fair on Sept. 21

On Wednesday, September 21, 2022, more than 100 businesses and organizations from across Cumberland County and from throughout South Jersey will participate in the Cumberland County Business Expo and Job Fair, 4-7 PM in the gymnasium of Rowan College of South Jersey, Cumberland Campus, on College Drive in Vineland. Sponsors and exhibitors may register online, and they and the public can get the latest expo information at www.CumberlandExpo.com.

The expo offers free admission to the public to encourage local shopping, and to give job seekers the opportunity to meet with dozens of companies who will be there looking for employees.

Last year, the expo was held outdoors at the college. This year, for the comfort and convenience of exhibitors and the public, the event will be inside the spacious college gym. The expo is providing a table and two chairs in each 8 x 8 foot space and exhibitor fees remain unchanged. The exhibitor fee for those who are members of any Chamber of Commerce, anywhere, is $200. It is $300 for organizations who are not Chamber members.

"With our online presence for the expo, opportunities for broadcast interviews, and attendance by the public, including those seeking new jobs, exhibitors expressed satisfaction, finding it valuable in developing new sales, relationships with other businesses, and in finding new employees," said Tony Stanzone, Chief Executive Officer of Bridgeton Area Chamber.

Message from Our Chamber President Carol Musso

I am pleased to report that our Chamber of Commerce continues to offer valuable and interesting speakers, meetings, and training opportunities. Partnerships with other organizations and our fellow Chambers in Cumberland County have increased such as our recent training session on LinkedIn. We partnered with Rowan College of South Jersey and Cumberland Development Corporation for that session. We also shared training and meetings options with Greater Vineland and Greater Millville Chambers on the topics of price negotiations and the new cannabis industry in the county. On September 21, we will present the Cumberland County Business Expo and Job Fair with our fellow Chambers from Millville and Vineland. We awarded scholarships in memory of Sidna Prickett recently and supported community events like the Hispanic Heritage Celebration, the Cumberland County Legends, and the Bridgeton Invitational Baseball Classic. Enjoy your summer and join us for Chamber and community events as the busy fall season begins. Be safe, and be healthy.
